I had the meanest mother in the world. While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs, and toast. While others had coke and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you can guess, my dinner was different from other kids'.

My mother insisted on knowing where I was at all times. She had to know who my friends were and what we were doing. She insisted that if I told her I would be gone an hour, I would be gone for an hour or less.

I'm ashamed to admit it, but she actually had the nerve to make us kids work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, and learn to cook. I believe she stayed awake at night, thinking up things for me to do!

By the time I became a teenager, she had grown much meaner. She embarrassed me by making my dates come to the front door to pick me up. And while my friends were dating at the mature ages of twelve and thirteen, my old-fashioned mother refused to let me date until I was sixteen.

In spite of the harsh way I was treated, I've never been arrested. And all my brothers and sisters turned out okay, too. I guess we owe it all to our mean mother. She insisted that we grow up into God-fearing, honest, responsible adults. I'm grateful to God that he gave me the meanest mother in the world!

Thank you for the vote of confidence on April 24. My prayer is that we will seek God's will in service to our community and experience His manifest presence in our worship. I look forward to all God has for us in the year to come.
